HANDSHAKES AND OTHER GREAT WAYS TO CONNECT

Handshakes are such an important part of our society that there's even a day to recognize them. Thursday, June 27 is National Handshake Day. While we may think of that ritual as a modern invention, historians say it goes back to the ancient Greeks, who used handshakes as a gesture of peace to prove they weren't holding weapons.

Handshakes have long been important to humans because they're a sign of a connection. We value our connections to other people and those with whom we do business. That's why staying connected with members has always been important to Indiana Members Credit Union.
