Ron Collier, president and CEO of IMCU, stated, “The remodel of our Greenwood Branch was designed to provide our members with a great service experience. We live the full-service, great member service concept that others talk about. We know our members, and we are committed to taking care of them. Everything that we do and strive for has to do with benefiting the lives of our members. The banking world is a world of numbers and electronics, but we believe it's also a world of people, and that's why we choose to make our members lives easier with not only the technologies we provide, but also the great staff we put in place to support them. We are excited
